Darling, it's been a long time since we last talked.
I want to tell you about the many small changes I've seen in me, in body and mind.

I am getting closer and closer to me each moment — whether it is a moment alone,
a moment with colleagues,
or a moment in a busy Tokyo street…
I feel I am approaching each bit in me, and each bit in the space around me, in the same way.
I feel at home, now and here, anywhere.

Darling, sit down slowly and patiently, and be with me in this moment.
Let me talk to you this moment because I would never need to do it again — once the words finish their task, I will bother you no more.

* * *

Being Present With Body and Mind

Darling, I told you about the 10 days I spent fully present with body and mind, learning to be with each bit, each vibration.

At first the mind got bored, stressed and perplexed at having to sit still and do nothing but observe each breath in, each breath out, each tiny bit of the body.
It craved for comfort, activity, all the usual obligations of a "normal" being I often do It thought all its desires, cravings and expectations would make it explode when sit still.
It could not face itself; it needed things outside — more things outside, the whole world outside — to define itself as smart, cool, pretty, kind, successful…

We were told: "Just observe the truth of whatever happens in body and mind.
If a feeling is pleasant, know it as pleasant; don't crave it. Once it appears, it will pass away.
If it is unpleasant, know it as unpleasant; don't hate it, don't chase it away.
Once it is there, it will pass away by itself."

At first the mind got angry and hostile, wanting to get rid of every discomfort and pain.
Then, gradually, it became soft and patient. It settled into the stillness of the heart and walked through the body like a scanner made of stillness — in full 3D, 360 degrees — looking at each bit just with care, no interference, again and again...

It saw each bit, each pulse appear, grow, pass away — not according to what the mind expected or desired, but as each being is.

* * *

The Moment I Saw No Border

Then one day I came home a bit tired and lay down to rest.
I wasn't thinking of anything, no particular desires.
The mind simply watched the body from top to toe, as if it was carrying a quiet light, saying a silent hello to each bit, pushing its will on none of them.

…and at that moment, Darling, I saw something I had never seen before.

All the bits and pulses in me were vibrating as if they were singing a shared melody of understanding and care.
I was surprised when I saw the border between body and mind was gone — between me and outside, between material and non-material
Each bit, each seed was an equal seed with its own vibrations — no border, no distinction, each one whole and respected.
And Darling, actually I saw no "me". I saw only a stillness, being there as ever, full and quiet.
The stillness is seen at the moment the mind freed itself from holding things
Before I couldn't see it, because I was so busy building a "me" that others expected

This experience goes beyond any excitement or happiness I have ever had — not happiness from personal effort, nor from romance.
It is a shared connection among beings present as they are, no border between me and him or her, between each being and the universe.
Long, deep and wide… reaching to the moon, to the universe.
No glossy colors, no heavenly scenes, no dreamy images — just a melody of stillness, where each bit was so clear and real.

When the mind stopped expecting and stopped putting its will on others, it was released — and so were they.
Everything returned to what it has always been, sharing the same melody.

The Three Seeds You Sent Me

Darling, I want to thank you.
What you wrote to me about non-self, about a world of no king, no rank, no wall, about the thin moment you saw your pulse decide — it is true.
I believed it completely,
I used to see myself as an individual trying to build a "me", which should be valuable in the network of society.
Now I see clearly that I am a collection of many whole bits, which this "me" do not have control,
Conversely it was this “me”, who was led by many of the bits, either dark ones or light ones... without me notice

* * *

Love, Desire, and the Stillness of the Heart, How They are Different?

Darling, let me tell you why this experience felt so long, deep and wide, as if it would never end — and why it went beyond the most exciting moments I have ever had

When I was with a man in the past, I truly wanted to make him happy
I once wrote, and I still believe:
"… if anything born on earth has a perfect reason to be here, then every bit of you is here for the reason to be served full love."
I tried to care for every bit of him equally, with my whole body
He said he had never had that; he said I was real

Yet I often felt something was missing, and I didn't know what Why was the excitement so short and abrupt?
Why did only some points feel it strongly — not the whole body, not all the bits?
I had no answer then; I simply accepted the theories that say "sex is just like that..."

Now I see the difference.
Back then my mind was full of desire — to give pleasure, perhaps to make him want me more, love me more.
The wanting pushed me to touch, to hurry, to kiss ...fast...and ...faster and we might have the pleasure of excitement, but something stayed unanswered, something lacking...

But when I am fully present with the body and mind, expecting nothing, the mind moved through each bit softly and patiently, with a sincere wish to understand it as it is — silently caring, not interfering.
I usually think of the body as solid, heavy matter and the mind as something intangible, like a untouchable secret
But when I saw without prejudice, just observing them as they are, both mind and body are flows of vibration, sometimes coming together, sometimes apart, singing a melody of gratitude and mutual respect.
Then the connection is full, deep and long, like a ball rolling on a frictionless surface.

It was not desire that brought me to every bit, but full presence, an empty mind, and stillness — which showed me that beings are already whole.

*　*　*

But Darling, however wonderful, how surprising these feelings were, they are not that important
What matters is the truth I see behind the experience.

I am an ordinary being with flows of dark and light seeds:
seeds of hope, effort, sympathy, care, love…
and seeds of ignorance, selfishness, expectation, greed, worry, fear…
They come, stay and go, not bound to my will. There is no real "me" to control them.
Many times that "me" was led by the dark seeds, because I identified myself with them
The truth is that “me” is a collection of bits, which are already full in whole,
A me of non-self

When the mind freed itself from hostility, from liking and disliking pain or comfort, the bits were released, each back to what it is — arising, staying, passing, by no one's will
The pain went away. It never wanted to stay;
it was the mind's hatred and prejudice that had kept it imprisoned.

And I saw my own mind mirrored in each bit.
Whatever I have made stays with me until I can see it and let it go.
Even a small frown I forgot, an unwholesome thought unnoticed — once created, these seeds stay and vibrate, hurting the bits in me, and resonating out to others too.
Darling, I realized that even a small being like me has added so much pain to this world, while before I kept wondering why there was so much suffering — as if I had no part in it.

Conversely it also means that even a small being like me can become a pure one, one of stillness to be with the most tiny bit in the universe by living with the truth about "me" made of many bits, a me of non-self, patiently observing and detaching me from each bit, let everything get back to what they really are.

* * *

The First and Most Important School and Laboratory

This time I had the chance to face and be present with the body and mind,
I learned so much, real and direct,
I found the first and most important school and lab for me is nothing else, nowhere else but this body and mind !
Let us see the interactions, resonations among the bits on body and mind has taught me all the laws of nature, all the laws I learned at school again but in a real and direct way, amazing

Darling, this body is a piece of nature itself — made of the very same particles as the earth, the water, animals, plants, stars, air, sunlight...and brought together by countless causes and conditions through interactions, resonation.
And in stillness I saw that the seeds of the mind are no different from the seeds of body: all of them are particles and vibrations.

Tangible, intangible , material, spiritual are equal to observed and studied, and applied
So if the laws of nature apply to everything in the natural world, they apply to this body and mind too — not only to its material, but to its thoughts and feelings as well.
Mind or spiritual things are often thought as intangible, secret, untouchable, if so, so are the light, the darkness, the microwaves, x-rays, gamma-rays...

the mind can be observed and understood as clearly as any of these rays, or any visible material...

So let us look into this body and mind, and learn from it as our school and our lab.
When I sit in stillness, I see the laws I learned at school and the law of cause and effect working consistently for body and mind, and for other things in nature
If we believe in these laws, Darling, let us believe in them consistently Universal Gravitation: all things, big or small, act on each other, and when one body pulls another, it is pulled back by the same force. Big or small, they are equal.

Look at the episode when the mind free it-self from holding things, from hostile thoughts, all the bits and pulses got released, they share a melody of mutual understanding.

Conservation of Energy: energy does not disappear; it only transforms when there is a cause.
A frown I sent toward someone, that frown made the same imprint on the bits in me, kept them suffering until I recognized it and sincerely changed my behaviors.

Some people often think they would go to heaven after dying — and I truly wish it for them — yet they still cling to living some more in their pretty home, they feel sad not be able to eat some more of their favorite food, they regret not having some more time with family members, lovers...
One dreams of heavens of freedom, no more worries and scare, but one maybe so naïve not to practice to transfer worries and scare into wisdom and mercy,
A mind full of worry and fear will not magically turn into energy of freedom to go to heaven just to one's will

If one really understand the Law of conservation of energy, one would not keep thoughts of contradictions, as one believe one or their family member would go to heaven after dying, then they should smile and be happy for being able to go to heaven, but most of the cases one scared of dying.

How I see the The Law of Inertia in mind and body:
the moment when my mind fills with stillness, no particular thought, no expectations, when all the bits on me shared the melody of understanding and care with the mind the vibrations go on and on, wide, deep, long ... ...to the universe as a ball rolls over a frictionless space for ever Darling here I learned the Law of Inertia directly on me, the mind at that moment is like a pure land with very less force of resistance and disturbance from my wanting or clinging.

There was no ropes of expectations and desires, but a quiet care and understanding for the melody to go on and on... ...

Theory of Relativity: each time I detach one bit from "me" and let it be as it is, the mind becomes a little softer and lighter.
One day, however long it takes, I will come back to zero, to be whole — as clear and real as a particle with no mass travelling at the speed of light.
Then I will be able to be with every being, understand them fully, and never get lost again.
The theory of relativity tells when a particle get no hold of mass, it gets the absolute speed,
The theory of stillness I saw in body and mind, when the mind release it from all attachment, it gets to Nibaya
I saw when I get hold of nothing, I am free to be a stillness to fill the whole Theory of Relativity let me see the race of wealth and power on earth, is like a race to find which particle of less mass to have the fastest speed,
No real winner would be found as no particle with the slightest mass could reach the light.
No one would reach the whole if he still has to hold anything...

There is so much common in the science of the outside world and that of inside world,
The outside world need modern equipment to make perfect environment like sterilized, vacuum special one.
The inside world need no equipment, and for everybody, the stillness is the perfect “vacuum” environment for bits to be as they be

* * *

Ten days of being present with body and mind taught me each of the laws again — real, alive, convincing and ready to apply Darling, I went through 12 years, then 4, then 2 more of so-called elite education, and I was still stuck.
I feel that we have forgot the very important thing here, body and mind to learn both the tangible and intangible, the visible and invisible...
I had believed these academic towers were the foundation of society.
Now I still see they are the foundation of this society, but the foundation for a ranking society...

* * *

Why am I writing all this to you, Darling?
I am writing to me, to all the bits in me, and to the 3 seeds you gave me:
non-self; no rank, no king, no wall; and the thin moment you saw your pulse.

Since I found the core of the Buddha's teaching, it has reversed my view of the world.
You were a real path for me, to see myself clearly and come close to me.
When I told you I care for you the same whatever happens,
I meant it, I am not the one 3 years before,
I am entering the threshold to the path of truth what makes me happy is not that you come to me or not, but that you come close to you, that you see your pulses close, be with them fully
That is when I see no difference between you and me.

We have known each other almost 3 years.
You are an important being who helped me see things as they are.
The connection between you and me is beautiful, and for the second half of it I have been waiting for you — and still, it is you.

If we can meet, so I can say thank you, let us meet — in Japan, Vietnam or India...
Don't let any covering keep us from meeting and talking the truth, Darling,
When I say I believe absolutely, it doesn't mean I expect anyone to agree with me.
You can tell me what you disagree with, ask me anything — I am honest
There are much more we can talk, it looks like the tiny seeds you sent me have grown into trees with branches and leaves for me to observe more clearly

But if you are still busy roaming, then tell me, ask me to let you roam and say goodbye to me.
If there is nothing I can do for you, it would be wise to close things up, for each of us face the purpose we chose this life, roaming for you and walking for me
Then let me say thank you, and goodbye to you, Brother.